A Few Words About

Crossroads Hospice Society

Traditionally a hospice was a place where travellers could rest and relax before continuing on their journey. Today the international hospice movement provides palliative or comfort care to individuals living with a terminal illness, and support to their loved ones. The focus is on caring rather than curing.

Crossroads Hospice Society was established in 1988 to serve the communities of Anmore, Belcarra, Coquitlam, New Westminster, Port Coquitlam, and Port Moody. The Society's aim is to provide care that values life until the moment it ends. We believe that every life has meaning and purpose and we strive to fill each remaining day with comfort and dignity.

At Crossroads we believe that the end of life should not be frightening, painful or lonely. In an atmosphere of love and concern it can be a rich and rewarding experience whether at home, in the hospital, or in hospice. Crossroads volunteers and staff provide life-affirming care for patients and their families, helping them with emotional, physical, and spiritual concerns that often arise as the end of life approaches.

Crossroads Inlet Centre Hospice

The Crossroads Inlet Centre Hospice opened in 2003 in Port Moody. It is a ten private bedroom facility that represents an option for those with a terminal illness who are not able to stay at home yet do not need all the services of a hospital. Crossroads Inlet Centre Hospice patients live their final days with peace and comfort in a home-like setting where family, friends and pets are welcome. Our Hospice offers many services and programs that focus on dignity and compassion and provides the setting for a meaningful time with loved ones when the end is near. In addition to full-time medical and nursing care, we offer spiritual support, an art care program, a music program, tea service, bereavement and grief support services, therapeutic touch, space for family meetings, and the services of dedicated volunteers.
